GRIFFMEN LEADING LEAGUE IN EXTRA-BASE WALLOPS

Have Made Fourteen Doubles, Seven Triples and Three Home Runs. Rain Bars Game Today.

BY J. ED GRILLO.

The first game of the series with the Mackmen scheduled for today was called off by Manager Griffith shortly after noon owing to the rain. If the field is in shape for a game tomorrow Gallia undoubtedly will be sent to the nound for the Nationals. Galfia is in good form now and Manager Griffith is relying upon him to be returned a vic-Myers, a tall righthander, who last fall held the Griffmen to a few hits and did not allow them to score, probably will be on the mound for the visitors. Myers easily defeated the Boston Red Sox a few days ago and promises to furnish good opposition fo

Despite the fact that the New York Yankees and Griffmen have had an even break in the games they have played to date, there is nothing impressive about the Donovan aggregation. With the breaks not tavoring the Yankees the Nationals would have made a clean sweep of the two series they have played with them.

Donovan's ciub is not a well balanced aggregation. It is weak behind the bat, has an outfield which does not compare with any other in the league and is a team which will not occupy a very nigh place in team batting.

So lar as its pitching strength is concerned, Donovan has not shown anything which looks impressive. Callewell is a star and Fisner also is a serviceable pitcher, but it was believed that the Yankees would be weil supplied with left-handed pitchers. However, the two who were shown in the local series, Love and Cullop, proved easy marks and are not apt to be of much value to their team. Under existing conditions in the American League a team which cannot boast of a couple or three good left handed twirlers is shouldering a great handicap.

Coveleskie of Detroit, for instance Coveleskie of Detroit, for instance, has scored three victories over the White Sox, who are not likely to beat any team which can present, a south-paw of class on the rubber. Boston is just as badly off.

New York has not shown a left-hander who will be troublesome, and this virtually puts it at the mercy of the White Sox and Red Sox, two teams which are easily stopped with south-paw pitching.

For the third time this season Walter Johnson yesterday took the Yankees into camp. He was in better form yesterday than on the former two occasions when he was pitted against the New Yorkers, and he held the visitors in check until the last inning, when he resorted to his old system of letting up after he gets a good lead. Johnson went six innings without allowing a hit or a man to reach first base, but he has no ambition to figure in a no-hit game, something he has never accomplished.

Sam Simon and Howard Smith, former Georgetown base ball stars, who live in Buffalo and saw a lot of Judge last season, give the Nationals first baseman credit for winning the pen-nant for their team.

nant for their team.
"Judge did not hit much during the "Judge did not hit much during the early weeks of the season," Simon said, "but once he got started he brought the team right up in the race. It was his hitting which gave Buffalo the pennant, and I look for him to repeat that stunt for the Nationa's. I understand he has not been getting any breaks since the season started, but you can rely on him outhitting any one on this team during the greater part of this season. See if I haven't called the turn."

FIRST RACE AT 2:30 P.M. Howard Shanks made his presence in the line-up felt as soon as he was shoved into right field, when Shawkey was taken out and Cullop sent in. The first time up Shanks helped to two of the four runs scored in the fourth inning, Johnson scoring on his drive to right for three bases and scoring himself later. His hit and one by Milan after Foster's out had put him on second allowed him to score again in the eighth. Virginia Beaten in Close Game by Shanks is a mighty valuable player for the local team. As a fielder and thrower he has few, if any, equals in the league, and he also has the distinction of being one of the most popular players that ever wore a Washington uniform.

1 to 2. Both pitchers were in great form, and until the sixth inning nothing resembling a hit had been recorded against either. Gill allowed the Virginia batters one hit, while Hagar gave but three.

Holy Cross started the scoring in the seventh, when an outfield error, a safe bunt and a batter hit by a pitched ball filled the bases. Gill then took a hand in winning his own game with a sacrifice fly to deep left, bringing in Cooley. Virginia tied the score in her half, due to poor infield work by Holy Cross.

In the next inning Holy Cross scored two and put the game on ice infield two and put the game on ice infield two and put the game on ice infield the sacrifices.

since Pat Moran has been in charge of the Phillies he has purchased only three players—Pitchers McQuillen and Karl Adams and Outfielder Good—and for each of these he paid the waiver price. He did not draft a man last fall and he obtained the right to sign Outfielder Cooper Saturday for nothing. Moran picked up Chief Bender and George Chalmers when they were free agents. He traded Dooin to Cincinnati for Niehof and let Lobert go to the Giants in exchange for Stock, Demaree and Jack Adams, a catcher. He obtained Whitted from the Braves, together with Infielder Dugey, in a trade for Sherwood Magee. In other words, the building up of the champions has involved an outlay of not more than $5,000 for players' releases.

Moran does not believe in deals for expensive stars, and as a result the Philadelphia club is a money maker for the first time in a great many years.

VISITORS SCORE ONLY IN THE FINAL INNING

With Game Won, Walter Lets Down and Allows Four Hits and Two Runs.

BY J. ED GRILLO.

Walter Johnson won his third game from the Yankees yesterday, and had he not foafed in the ninth inning he would have scored a shut-out. By scoring eight runs at the expense of the three pitchers Donovan used, the Nationals easily finished even on the series.

It was another good hitting day for the Griffmen, nine hits for sixteen bases, netting the eight runs referred to. It was in the third inning that the locals did their first scoring. Then Johnson walked as a starter, Moeller sacrificed, and on Foster's tap to Peckinpaugh Johnson was retired at third by a quick throw to Baker. walked, and when Rondeau had hit to right for two bases two runs came

In the fourth the game was cinched. Morgan opened with a hit to left. Ainsmith fouled out. But McBride sent Morgan to third with a single, and Johnson then tripled to right, sending McBride and Morgan over the goal. Shanks, who had taken Moeller's place when Johnson hit Shawkey for a triple, which ended Shawkey's career on the rubber, drove a triple to right, scoring Johnson, and Shanks scored the fourth run of the inning on Foster's sacrifice fly to right.

In the seventh Milan walked, Rondeau was hit by a pitched ball, Judge fanned. Morgan was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases, and on a long sacrifice fly to center by Ainsmith Milan scored.

In the eighth singles by Shanks and Milan, with Foster's out sandwiched in between brought the final run over the plate.

Donovan's pitchers all were hit hard and his team looked decidedly weak against Johnson, who allowed but eighteen men to face him in the first six innings, and did not allow a hit until the seventh, which Maisel started with a safe drive. After that Walter tightened up until the ninth, when he loafed and Maisel. High, Cook and Gedeon got hits which netted two runs, all the visitors scored. Score: all the visitors scored. the right and then curve it in again to end a long flight by a safe roll on the fairway.

With all strokes that eventuate successfully there is a glory in working out with the swing the plan conceived by the brain. To play a straight ball into the wind is always the safest; but such a drive lacks the stimulus of attempting a premeditated pull, as one may have seen a great master of the game do, although it counts no more and is always a risk.

To play for a slice withdraw the left foot somewhat; do not try to turn in the left wrist and hold the right hand so that the V on both hands are aligned. The club should be taken back straighter and the swing more vertical than horizontal, the idea being to give a slanting blow at the impact that will impart a spin from left to right. Such a ball should rise quickly and drop nearly dead.

Pull or slice at will if you are able to, but the art of the modern golf architects does not encourage proficiency in curve hitting from the tee. They
